THE WAYS OF HONGEOUD Officials are a wysneglected, and the most unfortunate dis- which capable of correing, and intimidating agreements thereby engondered. The latest the respectable inhabitants, so as secure illustration of this was given on Monday at every chanco of immunity from punishment, the Logislative Council. In consequence of as every native in the Colony is afraid to give the views expressed by Chief-Justica Small testimony against them. This cliquing and with regard to the Ordinance for carrying out conspiracy, among the criminal classes is the the rendition of criminals to the Chinese greatest difficulty with which the Govern-Authorities, the Government introduced a ment bas to deal; and it must be confessed bill to remove the doubts existing. The that, whatever room there was to differ with measure was a necessary one, and no time Sir Richard MacDonnell in other ought to have been lost with regard to it matters, be deserves the highest credit But the Government did lose time; did not for the vigorous measures which he tool give any notice to the Curre-Justica that to put down the power of the rowdy the measure was about to be introduced, and classes. This and to keep down the dangerous portion of argument is so transparent a piece of incon- the criminal population. nistency, that it is not to be supposed those who advanced it meant it for anything more than a semblance of explanation, for the sake of decency of a step-which they were fully hware was of a very irregular nature. The truth, it would seem is, that, in bonsequence of the strong views expressed by the Curer-JUSTICE they feared his opposition to the monsure, and hoped by hurrying it forward to Fridity hat; the 18th instant, and up to doos on would have been applied from the sum voted in get out of the difficulty. That Judge Shale Tuesday and successfully paid out 440 miles: 1870, if the payments had been made during holds very strong opinions on the subject fine. - Strails Times, 25th May. of the Extradition Ordinance of 1850 is notorious, and is shown in his judgment in the KWOK-A-SING case; but it is not necessarily to terday, but the list was very short, and the be concluded that because he holds such views as a Judge, he would oppose a necessary measure in face of the opposition of the of $105.41, brought by Low Atze and another, Government and the Council. Whatever views upon many subjects, it cannot be denied turned out, did not subject between them. that, though he does not hevitate to express and since in the absence of the defendant the them at the Council, he has never been guilty of adhering to them to the extent of obstructing public business, and it is difficult to conceive any just reason for imagining that he would do so in the present instance. Even, however, admitting that such might possibly be the case, there were sufficient members in the Council to overrule one voice; and, although the Government and the | berately by the prisoner in the course of a night other members would be called mon to listen with special respect to the views of the CHIRF-JUSTICE upon a legal question, they would not be bound by them in the Legislative Council, and were competent-of course with becoming courtesy—to carry an irrgent measure, even in the face of anything-that the Hon. Mr. Smale might be called upon to soner. It is serisfactory to find that he is conurge. Possessed of such full powers, the Government ought not to have countenanced any deviation from strict official etiquette, benefit now that the trial is over, though senand whatever opinions may be held on the merita of the measure itself, it can hardly be questioned that in not giving proper noticeof their intention to bring forward the bill. the Government was guilty not only of a breach of official stiquette, but of casting an uncalled for slight upon the CHIBY-JUSTICE: tier, the Hon: the Colonial-Secretory, the Hon. Ordinance, there can be no possible doubt. An the Hon. Mr. Kuswick pointed out, the present state of affairs would in a very abort. space of time lead to the Colony being made the refuge for all the criminals in the Canton province; and we should thereby not only be doing an injury to ourselves by increasing the number of bad characters in the place, but be also committing a gross injustice toward the Chinese authorities by allowing the Colony to become a refuge for their criminals. As to the intention of the Treaties with reference to rendition; there is no doubt, whatever the technicalities may be, that the idea was to give up all Chinese refugees who from a wrongful act are bond fide amenable to their authorities on Chinese territory. The words " proof of guilt". are open to some discussion, but the broad intention in the Treaties is undistakeable. So strong indeed is the case, that it is impossible to believe the CHIEF JUSTICE would have registed the Legislature in carrying throughs necessary ordinance, especially when it would be in the power of the Home Government, if it thought fit, other to negative what was done or to return the ordingson for amendment. The stronger, the grounds the Executive had for considering themselves right in introducing the drdinance, the more were they called upon to have it passed in the ordinary way, and to take care that there should not be the slightest appearance of irregularity in connection with it. What was done on Monday might possibly have been justifiable, on account of the pressur pature of the matter, at the previous meeting of the Council; it might also, as urged by Mr. Kaswicz, be necessary of Monday, reeing how long a time had already elapsed during which nothing bad been done; but it was not necessary at any time between May 3rd, when the Council previously met, and May 29th, last Monday; when the bill was hurried through unless the illness of the Lieur, Governon has provent ed the possibility of the Council meeting for over three weeks, and has so affected the

The most important bearing of the matter is, the intunidation which the more powerful class of criminals are able to exert among the native community. He seems to have been the terror of the Kowloon side, and when once he was arrested several obarges, bitherto kept back through fear of him, were brought forward. So great was the influence wielded by this man over the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, that the magistrate, who could not take evidence, as the Coroner did, in the absence of the prisoner, could not commit him, the witnesses cating their own words when confronted with the privioted of something at last. That Judge-SMALE holds very strong opinions on the subject of the Extradition Ordinance of 1850 is notorious, and is shown in his judgment in the Kwox-a-sing case; but it is not necessarily to be concluded that, because he holds such views as a Judge, he would oppose a neces- poned. The exception referred to was a claim sary measure in face of the opposition of the of $105.41, brought by Liow Atze and another, Government and the Council. Whatever opinions may be held of the CHIEF Justice's band and wife, whereas that relation, as views upon many subjects, it cannot be denied that, though he does not hesitate to express them at the Council, he has never been muilty of adhering to them to the extent of obstructing public business, and it is difficult. that he would do so in the present instance. possibly be the case, there were sufficient members, in the Council to overrule one other members would be called upon to listen with special respect to the views of the Chiky-Council, and were competent of course with the Government was guilty not only of a breach of official etiquette, but of casting an uncalled for elight upon the CHIEF-JUSTICE. As to the urgest necessity for passing the Ordinance, there can be no possible doubt. As the Hon. Mr. KESWICE pointed out, the present state of affairs would in a very abort space of time lead to the Colony being made the refuge for all the criminals in the Canton province; and we should thereby no only be doing an injury to ourselves by increasing the number of bad characters in the place, but be also committing a gross injustice toward the Chinese authorities by allowing the Colony to become a refuge for veyor-General could not do the work for the their criminals. - As to the intention of the Treaties with reference to rendition, there is no doubt, whatever the technicalities may be, that the idea was to give up all Chinese refugees who from a wrongful act are bond fide amenable to their authorities on Chinese territory. The words "proof of guilt" are open to some discussion, but the broad intention in the Treaties is unmistakeable. So strong indeed is the case, that it is impossible to believe the CHIEF-JUSTICE would have resisted the Legislature in carrying through a necessary ordinance, especially when it would be in the power of the Home. Government, if it thought fit, either to negative what was done or to return the ordinance for amendment. The stronger, the grounds the Executive had for considering themselves right in introducing the ordinance, the more were they called upon to have it passed in the ordinary way, and to could not go into the market and buy ut the Catholica. The Reformatory at West-point was a take care that there should not be the slightest appearance of irregularity in connection with it. What was done on Monday might possibly have been justifiable, on account of the presence mature of the matter, at the previous meeting of the Council; it might also, as urged by Mr. KESWICK, he necessary on Monday, scoing how long a time had already elapsed during which nothing had been done; but it was not necessary at any time between May ord, when the Council previously met; and May 29th, last Monday; when the bill was hurried through; unless the illness of the Lieux. The disallowal by the Home Government Ordinance No. 7 of 1870, has been attended with serious results, the consequence of the step being that a large number of the worst criminal chases, of whom the colony was cleared by its means, have returned. It is not surprising under the circumstances that

The most important bearing of the matter is, the intimidation which the more powerful class of criminals are able to exert among the native community.. THE NATIONAL FINANCES There has been a most remarkable change in the aspect of the that financial year since large as expected, According to the account to the 25th March the revenue was then has been a very large expenditure in the last wook, or rather the last five days of the financial year. There was spent in these five days: --Obarges on Consolidated Fund. 2104.868: supply services, £3,305,660; total, £3,410,528 And as the receipts of revenue were only £1:412.971, the aspect of the accounts of the year is entirely changed. The large expenditure in the last week of the year is due to the new eystem of nompelling the departments to surronder their balances. Formerly if a vote wa unexpended within the year the balance stood to the credit of the department, and it might be exonded in the following year without a fresh vote. Now unexpended balances must be surroudered to the Exchenner, and a fresh vote obtained The result is that the spending services endeavour to pay within the year as much as possible of the liabilities which are really incurred within The accounts of contractors and others are consequently nent in an near the close of the year an possible, and obeques are drawn at the last moment. HINDRANCES TO COMMERCE IN TH DARDANELLES AND BOSPHORUS. Mr. McVeigh, United States Minister at Constantinople, addressed to Mr. Fish, Pebruary 22nd, a long paper on the navigation of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus. After reciting various treaties by which the free pavigation of these straits was secured to the commercial vessels of various Powers, closing with the treaty of Adrianople in 1829, which secured that right to all friendly nations, and the treaty of 1830 of the most favored nations, be says; "Unfortunately, the regulations in force are ner.

antiquated and vexatious. A merchant vessel passing from the Archipelago to the Black Sea is obliged to stop at the Dardanelies to exhibit - her bill of health, to stop at Constantinople to same vessel, upon returning, is obliged to stop $553; to $555; Malwa at $635 to $64), on at the Bosphorous to exhibit her bill of bealth, stop at Constantinople to obtain another firmas for the westward passage, and to stop at the No change at present in the drug market. Dardunolles to deliver it. As neither strait can be entered nor neither firman obtained at night, these six stoppages would constitute a Qu London.very serious detention, even if they did not, in many cases, cause the loss of favorable winds, and thus entail far more gerious delay. Upon such occasions also, by reason of them, danger is added to delay. It is confidently asserted that for all these injurious restrictions, small ateamboats stationed by day and by night at such strait, and conveying an officer of police and an officer of quarantine to each yessel desiring to pass, would afford a complete salistitute; that they would seeme every object now attained by the Porte, and with greater certainty; that they would at the same time obviate every reasonable ground of complaint, and that the foreign commerce of these straits would gladly bear the slightest additional expense.

A commission to consider the whole subject was instituted by the foreign legations, and an elaborate report was presented by that dommission April 16th, 1870. It is believed that if an enriest and united support was given to the recommendations of that commission, or to any other mode of remedying existing evils, little difficulty would be experienced in securing its adoption. Unfortunsiely, however, unanimity is hardly attainable in the diplomatic body accredited here. - Alla.

CANNIBALISM ON THE WEST CUAST

OF AFRICA. The Shefield Telegraph publishes the following extractifrom a private letter, dated February 28, 1871, the writer of which witnessed several of the incidents named :- "It may not generally be credited that cannibalism is still in existence in some of the oil rivers on the West Coast of Africa. However, such is the fact. Un the 22nd February upwards of 400 of Shanghai Steam Navigation Company-Ils. 26 the New Calabar mation, with twelve war canoes, armed with campon of various calibre, opened fire upon the Eoruka country, situated some 60 or 70 miles from the mouth of New Calabar River. The remaining prisoners were brought to Calabar on the 25th of February; and there, after going through the rites. and ceremonies usual on such occasions, were killed by backing off their beads with hatchets. The bodies were then out ap into small portions and distributed to the different houses in the town to be cooked. In addition to the sixteen prisoners stready mentioned, eight others were captured, who are supposed to be natives of Bonny : but as the Calabarites are not at war with the Bonny nation, the lives of these have for the present been spared. From the fact of their being captured when in the company of the Ecruka men, they are very naturally supposed to be in league with them. Moreover, one of the men took a solemn oath that the Bonny men were assisting the Ecrokad by lending canoes and supplying them with ammunition. FREE THADERS IN THE UNITED Upon the tariffication, writes the American correspondent of The Times, the "Revenue Reformers in the House have Reveloped this morning bringing the London Mail of settled purpose to bring down the duties by piecement. The House ties passed resolutions to take off the duties from coal, salt, too, and coffee, a proceeding which, if the Senate concurs, will reduce the revenue, about $18,000,000. The tea and coffee reduction was initiated by the Protectionists in the hope that if the revenues are thus largely reduced, it will be an argument against wher reductions upon articles now heavily protected. The coal and salt repeal bills have each passed a third reading in the Senate, and may become MA laws. The Protectionists of sittemely fright. ened. Heretofore they were mediatomed to B dictate; but now they beg. Their present SA stronghold is the Senate, where they are still N in a majority, but it seems as if their power in N. the House was almost all gone. The plan of the "Revenue Reformers" is indicated in recolutions presented in the House by Mr. Cot. S. (Democrat,) of New York, which state that economy requires that the minul taxation shall not exceed $250,000,000, including $125,000,000 for the public debt; that the taxiff should be for revenue only, and not for the protection of class interests at the general expense; and that measures ought to be adopted for reforming SI the revenue in accordance with these principles.

Extracts. The Midnight Sau-(From "the Broadway, a London Magazine." Vigorously Herr Ostrom plied the whip we approached the town of Raparaud, and great clatter the little Swedish horses made as they galloped over the ill-paved streets. The rumbling carriage rattled worse than ever, and the worthy burgher produced the desired effect of bringing everybody to door and window, and causing open-mouthed wonder in the simple pensonts. The carriage and its occupants or cited so much attention that I followed almost unnoticed in the jingling "triller." Herr Oa. trom was a burgher of Stockholm, who, for love of filthy lucie, had demonned himself so far as to become our courier and interpretor, was "not to be treated as a servant." Three days before we had landed from the Stockholm steamer. Umed, in a village about half-way up the Guli of Bothnia, where we had taken postchorses and hurried, with all attainable speed, northward. Well might we basten, for wewere chasing the sun. We had learned that on the 21st June, from Avesaxa, a mountain the God of Day taking unto himself supreme rule, and queting night altogether; in other words, that the sun would remain the whole twenty-four hours above the horizon. were three days behind time, but hoped still to onich a glimpse of the" midnight sun." Our in Sweden is conducted on decidedly obsolete. principles. Certain, firm houses on the road are designated as post-stations, and the neighhouring peasants take turns in supplying travellers with horsas. We drive up to a postbouse, and if it happens to be a "first station." that is, one where the postimuster is bound to bave horses always in readiness, we may hone to get off in an hour, that being the time of loved bim to produce his animals. The readiness consists in baying the impreca pastured in some neighbouring field, and on our arrival three or four bare-headed boys and girls set off with most cheon aging haste, in different directions, to catch them. But be not too annguine, my travelling .companions; perhaps we are doomed to see the horses that to do them justice, however lazy in harness, always exhibit dinazing activity when at large, chased from field to field, at last covnered, dodging their pursuers, and with contemptuous_clerition of book, dashing off again at full spoud.; Whilet imputiently natching these manonvers, we are fortunate if the approaching tinkling of beils, (they bell their horses as we do cows.) unnounces the successful capture of some other bord, which. with much shouting, is triumphantly driven into the yard. The required number is selected, harnessed, with much letting out and taking up of strape, (for travellers provide their own harness,) the owner of one or more of the animals, mounts on the box beside Ostrom, and he asts off, while I drive the triller, a rude bug ry, and we strive to get something more than the regulation speed, four English miles an bour, out of the clamsy brutes. They are all dun-coloured mane and tail enough to provide half a score of i civilised horses. As we go porthward the ponies are smaller, shaggier, and lighter coloured; the are very small, hornless, and pure white in colunr. The trees are stunted, and we traverse vast forests of dwarf pines. There is no night now. The sun poure down upon ne for twentytwo hours in the day, scorohing as with his inst hovers above the horizon. When he sinks lose sight of us, there is a clear, bright twilight. The peasants are stirring at all hours, for they take but little rest in mid-summer. literally "making hay while the son shines," and postponing sleep till the long winter nights. We go on, stopping but twice a day to snatch a meal of "lax stake" (broiled salmon) and black Swedish bread. The worthy burgher gets wearied with alceplesaness, and the toil of urgingforward lagging borses. Assoon as we reach a post-house, he calls for a glass of brandy and a cup of coffee, andthrowing himselfonthe floorfalls fast asleep. I pay for the horses, hasten the harnessing of freeh ones, and then wake him with difficulty. Thus we harry northward, now planged in dreary forests, then mounting bills whence we behold the island studded sea and the lakes dotted valleys, or crossing noble rivers, whose deep dark waters flow so gently as bardly to awarve proceed along the shores of the Fornes river. all of us travel-wearied.
